SUNDAY AUTO RIDING

Money Spent for Gasoline Used Would Pay Salaries of Missionary Bishops, Says Rector.

The Rev. John N. Lewis, Jr., rector of St. John's church, in Waterbury, preached a very earnest and practical sermon Sunday morning on missions, urging his hearers to do their duty in giving towards missionary objects according to their means. He appealed especially for generous contributions next Sunday, for the contingent fund of the parish, saying there were many calls upon him to which he felt it his duty to respond promptly.

The Rev. Mr. Lewis said that while he had no exact figures at hand, he thought it safe to say that there was enough money spent for gasoline used in running automobiles by their wealthy owners throughout the country during the morning church hours to pay the salaries of the missionary bishops of the church. The Rev. John N. Lewis, Jr., rector

BIG WATER PRIVILEGE. N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. Buys Out the Birmingham Water Power Company.

The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company has acquired by purchase the property of the Birmingham Water Power company, extending from Ansonia to Derby, and including all its water rights, privileges and franchise. The negotiations have including all its water rights, privileges and franchise. The negotiations have been quietly conducted from New York and were completed there Tuesday. The purchase involves a large outlay of money, but the results promised, both to the railroad and to Ansonia, will fully warrant the expenditure. The purpose of the railroad company in the acquisition of this property is two-fold. First, it provides land for a freight yard for Ansonia and at the same time affords opportunity for large expansion at Derby; second, it will relieve the railroad company from the interruption of its business during the winter and spring freshets by the weakening and sometimes partial destruction of its trestle across the Naugatuck river at this point.

An Old Account Book. "Wolcott. Jan. 1st, A. D., 1823 Thomas H. Welton's book of accounts." is the inscription in an old book owned by Thomas Fairclough, of Wolcott.
The book was found by him in the farmhouse where he lives, when he moved into the house some 35 years

| Henry E. Chr. | July 12 daw ago. The words in which the account were written is small and cramped and at a glance resembles German rather than English script. It is English, however, oldfashloned, hard-to-read. however, oldfashioned, hard-to-res but pathetically interesting English. The first of the accounts is wi The first of the accounts is with Levi Hall and reads: "Feb. 12, to one day's work laying wall. April 10, "67." The price for a day's work seemed to vary with the length of the day, for in June, 75 cents is charged for laying wall, while for mowing as much as $1.75 is paid for two day's work. Perhaps some of the most amusing items are the amounts charged for the use to teams: "Feb. 20th, by horse twenty-four cents. Aug. 15th, by horse use to teams: "Feb. 20th, by horse twenty-four cents. Aug. 15th, by horse and sleigh to Southington, 4 miles, to Plymouth station, twenty-five cents." But the rates were hardly uniform, for on April 10th, Milo G. Morchkies was charged only 20 cents. Hotchkiss was charged only 20 cents to Southington, but it may be that he furnished his own sleigh, or wagon. furnished his own sleigh, or wagon.

A comparison has been drawn between the careers of Marshall Field. who left $80,000,000, and H. H. Rogers, who left only a beggarly $34,000,000, and much to the discredit of the latter, if we are to take the preachments of these moralists as gospel.

Marshall Field never created anything in his life. He was a gleaner in fields that others had planted, and he had the trick of frugality. Honest man, of course, a benefactor, perhaps. Plenty of honor to him for his stimulation of the noble quality of emulation in tens of thousands of American youth. But H. H. Rogers, whatever else be did, was a creator. He made innumer-able blades of grass grow where none grew before. He lost millions, or rather spent millions, to bring the coal of Virginia to the Atlantic seaboard. YACHT TILLIE AS A FISHING STEAMER. Sold to Portland Concern After Having Been Laid Up Five Years.

The steam yacht Tillie, at one time considered one of the finest pleasure craft on the coast, has ben consigned to the fishing business for the remainder of her days. She has been out of commission for five years, having been laid up here, says the New London Day. Her owner, Fred L. Osgood of Norwich, has sold the yacht to the New England Fishery company of Portland, Me.

The Tillie is thirty years old, having been built at Newburg, N. Y., in 1880. She formerly was steam yacht Polynia, but her name was changed after she fas purchased by Mr. Osgood. The Tillie had a gross tonnage of 201 and a net tonnage of 100. She was capable of generating 1,100 h. p. The steamer is 164.9 fet in length, 18.5 feet beam and 9.9 feet draught.

She will be taken to Portland soon, her deckhouses altered and the interior made to conform to the requirements of a fishing steamer.

New Superintendent Soldiers' Home. The election of George Robbins to the superintendency of the soldiers home at Noroton comes as a surprise to many. Few knew that a change was to be made and Mr. Robbins' can-didacy for the vacant place has not been exploited publicly much. He had the earnest support of the late Major Appel, who was a member of the board and whose death might have affected Mr. Robbins' chances unfavorably, but for the fact that he had personally impressed the other members of the board by his special qualifications for the office. He is peculiarly sympathetic with the old soldiers. That he has proved in a thousand ways through many years. He has a fine personal address mixing dignity with amiabiladdress, mixing dignity with amiability in a degree that reveals kindness while it compels respect and subordination. We shall expect Mr. Robbins to make almost an ideal superintendent of the home.—Waterbury Republican.
